New feature...Spotlight on our members!

Sad news: Emily Greenberg, the wife of longtime BIBS member John Sondheim, passed away on September 14, 2022. We send John our sincere condolences.

One of our longtime members was Goeff Fielding. Goeff passed away several years ago. His daughter, Meg Fielding, has informed me that selected items from his eclectic book collection will be available via online auction at Alex Cooper on October 18 at 7:00 pm. You must pre-register to bid. The link is below. The preview is Tuesday through Friday, October 4th- October 18th, 10 AM - 4 PM (Not open for viewing on Monday or the Weekend) 10880 Railroad Ave, Suite 700-B, Cockeysville, Maryland.

Highlights include: Books on Ships and the Sea and Maritime Interests, Books on Maryland as well as Baltimore, including several Ogden Nash. Numerous Cookbooks, including many on English Cookery. Early George Orwell, including a first American Edition of 1984.

As Meg related to me...if you knew Geoffrey Fielding, you would understand the broad range of topics in this collection.

News Notes from here and there...

Kelmscott Bookshop: October 2022 Newsletter.

This month we are having a sale on Poetry, Drama, and Occult / Magic / Mythology books. Details about the sale along with links to browse and a few pictures are below.

Still wary of traveling in person to a book fair? No worries - you can attend Biblio.Live's virtual antiquarian book fair later this week! It opens on Friday and runs through next Sunday, the 16th. We will be exhibiting with a selection of private press, artists' books, history, and more. More details about this fair below. Preregister NOW to receive $10 in BiblioBucks to be used at the fair when you check out on Biblo.com. Additional details within the newsletter.

Our 19th annual print catalog will be distributed later this month! It is currently at the printer. If you would like to receive a print copy (and are not already on our mailing list), please let us know. We will send out a digital version as well once the print copy is ready.

We are featuring a new book artist this month - Marina Soria. Marina enchanted us with her calligraphy at Codex in April, and she came to visit us over the summer. We also had the pleasure of viewing several of her calligraphic book art pieces at her recent show at the Argentinian Embassy in DC. One of the first artists to master and teach calligraphy in Argentina, her work often incorporates alphabets of her own invention. Marina's work can be found in collections around the world. Twelve of her pieces are featured below.

From Rebecca Romney: Announcing the Honey & Wax Prize

This morning we announced the winner of the 2022 Honey & Wax Prize, an annual award of $1000 for an outstanding book collection conceived and built by a young woman in the US.

Our winner is Melanie Shi, whose collection "East of France, West of Russia: Cold War Europe and the Chinese Book" argued that "the history of postwar Europe can be told through the Chinese book."

This was Shi’s second time applying to the prize; she received an honorable mention in 2021, with a collection of cross-cultural books published and purchased by the Chinese diaspora in New York City. This latest collection reflects the energetic scouting, keen eye, and habits of inquiry Shi honed in Chinatown, but it is more ambitious in every way. Her collection reflects an awareness of multiple angles of each book: the text, the translation, the physical object, the publishers, the readers, the political context. Whether “China,” as an idea, is serving as shorthand for “Communism” in Eastern Bloc countries, or as an imperial fantasy represented by “sumptuous novels from the Ming and Qing dynasties” in France, Shi makes a compelling case for the role these books played in postwar debates about Western power.

We have also awarded $250 each to five honorable mentions. Read more about the winner and learn about each of the honorable mentions via The Millions:

The Grolier Club: Building the Book from the Ancient World to the Present Day: Five Decades of Rare Book School & the Book Arts Press

28 September–23 December 2022

The Grolier Club

47 East 60th Street, New York, NY 10022

Ground Floor Gallery

The Grolier Club presents a special exhibition that details how books have been produced throughout history and across various regions of the globe. Organized by Rare Book School at the University of Virginia and drawn from their unique collections, Building the Book from the Ancient World to the Present Day: Five Decades of Rare Book School & the Book Arts Press will be on view in the Grolier Club's ground floor gallery from 28 September through 23 December 2022. The exhibition celebrates the international institute—founded by MacArthur Fellow Terry Belanger and currently directed by Michael F. Suarez, S.J.—that brings together curators, librarians, book historians, conservators, and collectors from around the world to teach and learn about books as physical objects.

Curated by Barbara Heritage (Associate Director & Curator of Collections, Rare Book School) and Ruth-Ellen St. Onge (Associate Curator & Special Collections Librarian, Rare Book School), Building the Book features more than 200 items that illustrate the changing forms of the book over more than two millennia. The exhibition is a deep dive into the materials, printing technologies, decorative finishes, and markings that make books, such as the substrates (or surfaces) that give books their physical forms, ranging from ancient cuneiform tablets and papyrus to the composite screens of e-readers of today; to printing type, plates, and woodblocks; and bookbindings that declare a book's identity to the world.

“We have all been taught how to read books, but have we learned how to look at them closely? What can be gleaned from analyzing an original specimen of ancient papyrus, or by studying rubbings of a Chinese book engraved on stone, or by feeling the heft of a piece of beech once used in a European medieval bookbinding?” said co-curator Barbara Heritage.

“The more we learn to look at books as objects, the more we understand how their material forms are expressive not only of their manufacture, but also of the myriad communities and social networks from which they emerge—whether an ancient Egyptian farm, an early modern Tibetan monastery, a nineteenth-century prairie schoolhouse, or a turn-of-the-millennium Canadian home with its own desktop computer,” said co-curator Ruth-Ellen St. Onge.

Publication & Public Programs

Accompanying the exhibition is a new publication, Building the Book from the Ancient World to the Present Day: How Manuscript, Printed, and Digital Texts Are Made. Illustrated from the Teaching Collections of Rare Book School at the University of Virginia. Published by The Legacy Press and distributed by the University of Virginia Press, the book will be available in October 2022.

The Grolier Club will host related in-person public programs, including lunchtime exhibition tours, led by co-curators Barbara Heritage and Ruth-Ellen St. Onge, on Wednesday, 28 September 2022 and Friday, 14 October 2022, both 1–2 p.m. ET; a guided tour of the Asian books in the exhibition by RBS faculty member Soren Edgren, along with a Chinese calligraphy demonstration by Weiguo Yu, on Saturday, 15 October 2022, 2–4 p.m. ET; a symposium on “Building the Book” on Friday, 4 November 2022, 9 a.m.–5 p.m. ET (speakers and more details to be announced); and a virtual exhibition tour, followed by a Q&A with Barbara Heritage and Ruth-Ellen St. Onge, on Wednesday, 7 December 2022 at 6–7:30 p.m. ET.

Space in the in-person tours is limited, and advance registration is required. Click the links below to register. (Please note: the 28 September 2022 tour has filled.)

From The Ephemera Society of America NEW PRODUCER FOR EPHEMERA 43

The Ephemera Society of America (ESA) is pleased to announce Rare Books LA is the new producer for Ephemera 43. Save the dates March 18-19, 2023 for the finest gathering of paper specialists and collectors in the world. In conjunction with the two-day ephemera fair, the Society is also hosting its annual day-long ephemera conference, on March 17, 2023, with the theme of From Here to There: The Ephemera of Travel, at the Hyatt Regency Old Greenwich.

The ESA fair features more than 75 exhibitors offering a wide array of materials that range from trade cards and photographs to textile swatches, tobacco tins, radio premiums, vinyl records, and much more.

“We chose Rare Books LA’s team to produce our fair because of their success bringing new energy and excitement to the many events they have produced on the West Coast,” said ESA President David Lilburne. “We are looking forward to bringing this energy to the East Coast, and want to thank our retired promoter Marvin Getman.”

Rare Books LA is a Southern California-based producer of antiquarian book fairs, which also welcome dealers in ephemera, book arts, maps, and vintage photography. Founded by booksellers and ESA members Jen and Brad Johnson along with family members Jodi Tolan and Mechele Burry, they approach the production of events with inside knowledge of operations of the trade. They are also well-known for utilizing social media and other creative outreach approaches to bring new audiences to their events.

“Our goals are to modernize, streamline, and simplify operations for the exhibitors and develop exciting and engaging outreach to bring new audiences to Ephemera 43,” said Rare Books LA’s Director of Operations, Jodi Tolan.

Registration for Ephemera 43 will launch in the early fall. Exhibitors interested in learning more about the 2023 fair can email info@rarebooksla.com

Founded in 1980, The Ephemera Society of America is a non-profit organization which supports collecting, studying, and preserving ephemera. It serves as a link between and among collectors, archivists, researchers and dealers, and to encourage interest in all aspects of vintage paper.

Item Not Found: Accounting for Loss in Libraries, Archives and Other Heritage and Memory Organizations

A Virtual Conference

Organized by UCLA Center for 17th- and 18th-Century Studies/William Andrews Clark Memorial Library and Oakland University Libraries

March 8-9, 2023

12-4pm Eastern

Keynote Speakers:

Tamar Evangelestia-Dougherty, Director, Smithsonian Libraries and Archives T-Kay Sangwand, Librarian for Digital Collection Development, UCLA, and Gabriel Solís, Executive Director, Texas After Violence Project

This virtual conference considers the ongoing reassessment of memory and heritage work and heritage ownership, as it is understood by libraries, archives and related organizations, through an examination of the multiple meanings, complexities, and resonances of loss. As an inevitable reality of heritage preservation--saving everything is an impossibility--a nuanced understanding of the fundamental role of loss is an important counterpart to these organizations' work towards preservation, permanence and sustainability.

Once seen as static evidence of the past, heritage is now recognized as the subject of ongoing reinterpretation, maintenance, and negotiation for those living in the present. Collectors are increasingly willing to confront processes of repatriation, reparation and restitution, and other forms of deaccessioning, and vocabularies of ownership are giving way to those of stewardship, custody, and post-custody. At the same time, heightened attention to sustainable practices is also encouraging a reassessment of longstanding assumptions about collection development and preservation, challenging the model of limitless expansion, growth and permanence as a primary measure of success. Cultural memory and heritage workers, too, face many other kinds of loss within and beyond the workplace that impacts their labor, including loss of resources, safety nets, and colleagues. What is heritage and cultural property, and to whom do they belong? Who owns the past, and what does such ownership mean? Is it possible for acts of past injustice to result in cooperativerelationship-building for the future? How can a sustained interrogation of collection and heritage loss be productively leveraged to reckon with other kinds of loss in the cultural memory and heritage workspace? We seek to explore these and other related questions during this two-day conference.

The conference is free and open to the public; advance registration is required.

We invite presentation proposals from diverse perspectives on a range of topics including, but not limited to, the following:

- Theft, repatriation, virtual reunification, shared print/collection development
- Deaccessioning, redirections, removals
- Endangered archives, postcustodial archival practice
- Approaches to loss in preservation and conservation
- Human and resource loss in and beyond the workplace
- Other related aspects of practice and research

We encourage proposals from librarians, archivists, curators, conservators, scholars, museum professionals, students, and other stakeholders at any point in their careers, from institutions and organizations of all sizes, and including independent researchers.

The conference organizers welcome proposals for presentations in a variety of virtual formats. For questions, please feel free to contact us below.

A modest honorarium is available; University of California affiliates and international presenters are not eligible for the honorarium.

Please submit proposals (400-word maximum) using the following form: <https://forms.gle/WUXugxZ5Zrp8cj7P7>. Please submit proposals by November 4. Presenters will be notified by early December.
